

SVA FUNDAMENTALS FOR IMPACT

What does 'effective' look like?

In SVA's work across the sector over the last 15 years, our observation is that despite their best attempts, many funding and social purpose organisations struggle to clearly assess and articulate their effectiveness, and it's hampering their ability to improve their impact.

We've developed the SVA Fundamentals for Impact to help brave leaders and their ambitious organisations to answer critical questions about how effective they are. The SVA Fundamentals are a way to think systematically about the areas that might affect an organisation's ability to create the scale of social change it wants and provide a clear pathway to prioritise and act on that information to do better.

What are the SVA Fundamentals for Impact?

The SVA Fundamentals for Impact are grounded on the collective experience of many global practitioners and experts, international academic evidence on what effective funders and social purpose organisations look like and SVA's own experience in Australia over 15 years.

Developed specifically for the social sector, the SVA Fundamentals for Impact are differentiated from other organisational effectiveness tools. They recognise that effectiveness in this sector is determined by more than just internal capability and must also value being client centred and having a clear engagement with the ecosystem in which organisations and funders operate. In all, there are 15 organisational characteristics that SVA believes - and the evidence shows - are important for effectiveness.

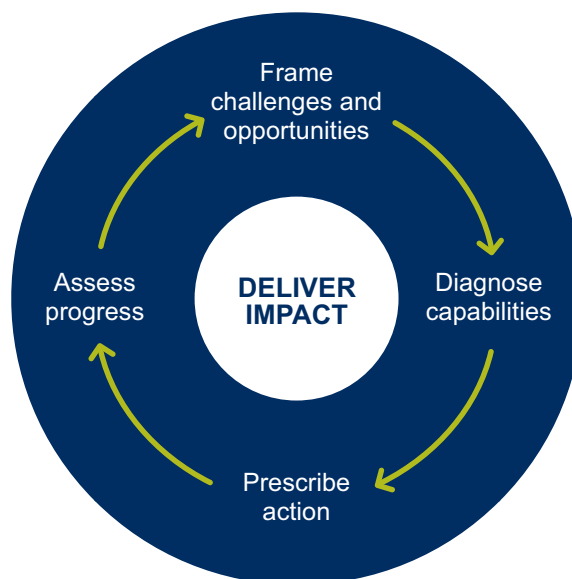

- CLIENT CENTRED
- EFFECTIVELY RUN
- ENGAGED WITH THE ECOSYSTEM
